Jeanine Young Am
University of the Sunshine Coast
Australia

Jeanine is an expert in infant care, breastfeeding, and safe sleeping practices. She launched the Sleep Safe, My Baby public health campaign and works to reduce infant mortality rates. She is passionate about delivering safe sleeping messages to parents and addressing health disparities among Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander infants. As an RHD supervisor at UQ, she mentors doctoral students in their research pursuits.

Jinwei Zhang
University of Exeter
England

Jinwei Zhang is a highly versatile researcher with expertise in natural bioactive compounds, biochemistry, molecular biology, pharmacology, and drug discovery. He focuses on signaling pathways associated with neurodegenerative diseases (e.g., Parkinson’s and Alzheimer’s) and neuropsychiatric disorders. His work involves genetic mouse models, mass spectrometry, electrophysiology, and CRISPR/Cas9 gene editing to uncover new drug targets.
